Index to 1900 Census, Ashley County, Arkansas

In 1988-89 Ashley County Genealogical Society members abstracted this index as a guide in finding families and individuals residing in Ashley County, Arkansas, when the 1900 census was enumerated. The index is listed in the order it appears on census microfilm by family number and by township. As always, we recommend that researchers use the index for assistance only, and that the original entire entry should be read. There is much other information about all persons in the household, including month and year of birth and relationship to head of the house. The abstractors attempted to be as accurate as possible with name spellings, etc., but handwriting is difficult to decipher, and sometimes only a "best guesstimate" is the result. The entire census was reread after the original abstractions. Those who deserve thanks for this are: Morene HISAW, Ella Mae WHITE, Lois HAGOOD, Faith NOWLIN, and Marilyn HUDGENS. Thanks also for the help and cooperation of the staff at Paul Sullins Library in Crossett.

THE ORIGIN AND DEVELOPMENT OF ASHLEY COUNTY, ARKANSAS

Claude Spainhour

This all started when I agreed to draw an 1860 property map of Ashley County. Very thorough and accurate research in the tax records, as well as a tracing of the county map had been done by others. All that was left to do was draw the property boundaries on the map and label them, right? Wrong!

The first clue that something was potentially wrong was that some of the records showed that taxes were paid to Ashley County on property that was outside the boundaries of the county in 1860. In fact, some were even outside the state, in Louisiana. We began to search for the actual county boundaries in 1860 and how they came to be. This turned out to be a very interesting trail.

In 1810 the entire south boundary of what is now Arkansas north to the Arkansas River, running diagonally across the state from northwest to southeast, was called "Indian Lands". This was an area approximately half of the present state of Arkansas. The area that is now Ashley County was in this territory. (1) See Figure 1.

In 1820 the present day state of Arkansas was in what was called Arkansas Territory. The northern, southern and eastern borders were approximately where they are now, but the western boundary included most of present day Oklahoma. The territorial legislature had divided the area we now call Arkansas into six counties. The counties were Lawrence, Phillips, Pulaski, Clark, Hempstead and Arkansas. There were also two Indian territories, the Cherokee Indian Tract and the Quapaw Indian Tract. Hempstead County on the west and Arkansas County on the east spanned the entire southern border of present day Arkansas. Hempstead County even extended west slightly into present day Texas. (1) See Figure 2.

By 1830 Arkansas' boundaries had been fixed essentially as they are now. Arkansas and Hempstead Counties had shrunk to the north and there were now three counties along the southern border of the state. Chicot County stretched from the Mississippi River to approximately midway across present day Ashley County, roughly one-quarter of the distance across the southern border of Arkansas. It also extended northward to equal the north boundary of present day Drew County. To the west of Chicot County lay Union County. It stretched approximately half way across south Arkansas and ran farther south than even Chicot County. At this time my estimate is that Union County contained approximately 10% of the area in Arkansas. To the west of Union County lay Lafayette County. It made up the final quarter of the distance across south Arkansas and it extended a few miles into present day Texas.(1) See Figure 3.

LOUISIANA

Arkansas became a state in 1836. By 1840 the new state legislatures had begun adding counties and changing county lines. The counties along the southern Arkansas border had changed size and shape north to south, but east to west they remained the same. There were still three of them as described in 1830 but Lafayette County's west boundary had been moved out of Texas to its present location. See Figure 4.

Section 1 of an act of the Arkansas Legislature dated November 26, 1846 establishes Drew County with boundaries as follows:

"Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Arkansas, that all that portion of the county of Bradley included within the following boundaries, viz: Beginning at the Louisiana line, where the Ouachita river crossed the same, thence up the middle of said river to the junction of the Saline river, thence up the middle of the Saline river to where the line between townships 13 and 14 crosses the same, thence east with said township line to the range line between ranges eight and nine, thence north with said range line to the corner of Desha County, thence east with the south line of Desha County to the north-west corner of Chicot County, thence south with the west line of Chicot County to the Louisiana line, thence west to the place of beginning, be, and the same is hereby formed into a separate and distinct county, to be called by the name of Drew County, to have and to enjoy all the rights, privileges, and immunities of an independent county." (2) See Figure 5.

This established Drew County west of Chicot County, but it extended north and south from the Louisiana line to the northern boundary of present Drew County. It was at least 50 miles from the Louisiana line to the northern boundary of the county, however it was only approximately half as wide as it is now. With the wording, "thence south with the west line of Chicot County to the Louisiana line", at the time the legislature passed this act, this east county line was straight all the way to Louisiana. That was not long to be however. Less than a month later, on December 21, 1846 this line was changed and Drew County was effectively doubled in size as follows:

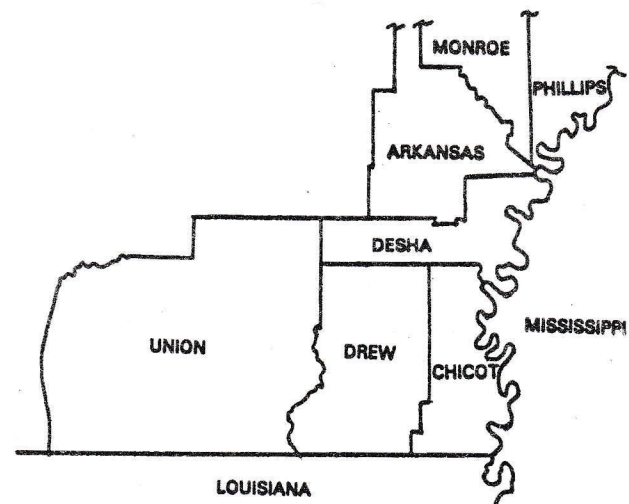

"Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Arkansas, That the following described part of the county of Chicot shall be, and the same is hereby attached to, and form a part of the county of Drew, to wit, Beginning on the Louisiana State line, where the line between the counties of Chicot and Drew intersect the same, thence east along said State line to the line between ranges four and five, thence north on said range line, to the line between townships eighteen and nineteen; thence east on said line to the middle of range four; thence north to the centre of township seventeen, range four; thence east to the line between ranges three and four; thence north along said range line, to the line of Desha County, it being the line between townships eleven and twelve; thence west with said line of Desha County, to the county of Drew." (3) See Figure 6.

This is an act that effectively doubled the size of Drew County east and west, but left a "notch" in the southeast corner that was still part of Chicot County. As you will see, Ashley County had this same "notch" in its southeast corner when it was first formed. This apparently caused some confusion and later had to be addressed.

On November 30, 1848 Ashley County was established as follows:

"Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Arkansas, That all that part of the county of Drew, lying south of the following described line, to-wit: beginning on the eastern boundary of said county of Drew, in the middle of township fifteen south, at the corner of sections thirteen and twenty-four of said township, in range four, thence west by the section lines to the Saline river, be, and same is hereby formed into a separate and distinct county, to be called Ashley County; to have and to enjoy all the rights, privileges, and immunities of an independent county." (4) See Figure 7.

Section 6 of the act provides for the first county seat as follows:

"Be it further enacted, That the temporary seat of justice of said county of Ashley, shall be at the house of Isaac Denson; provided, however, that the county court of said county may remove said temporary seat of justice to any other place not exceeding five miles from the centre of said county, until a county seat is permanently located;..."

Ashley County remained this same shape through 1860. That means that the 1860 property map that I'm working on will have the "notch" cut out of the corner, and that even more people than I thought owned Chicot County land, but paid taxes on it to Ashley County.

Finally, on January 19, 1861 the Legislature took the "notch" out of the eastern boundary of Ashley County and re-established it as a straight north-south line as follows:

"Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Arkansas, That the line between the counties of Ashley and Chicot be, and the same is hereby changed so as to be, and run as follows: continuing from the south-east corner of section thirteen, and the north-east corner of section twenty-four, in township seventeen, south of range four west; and running thence south, on the range line, between ranges three and four, to the Louisiana line; and that all that portion of the county of Chicot, lying west of the above line, be attached to and form and constitute a part and portion of the county of Ashley." (5) See Figure 8.
